

Dear Lil, Paul and Etienne,
I just this minute received the email about our 50th matric reunion – yes, unbelievable. My eldest grandson is in matric and writing maths today – throws me right back 50 years!

I obviously would love to come, but have to check it out, so cannot make any promises yet. However, one thing stands out. The date you chose, 21st September is exactly between the Jewish New Year (17th and 18th September) and Yom Kippur (26th September) which would make it super difficult for many of us from afar to leave families exactly at that time and be able to spend some time in S.A. as we would need some days before and after. Please don't take this wrong – if this is the date, everyone will live with it as they can but it could possibly help to have it a week or two later. Check with others if it works for you, or leave it as it is.

Very exciting to hear from you and I'll keep in touch and obviously pass on the information to anyone else I can find from our year.

All the best,
Merle
